

ADHD MEAL PLANNER & GROCERY LIST

Eat Well Without the Executive Dysfunction Meltdown

By Daniel Tesfamariam | FocusFlow Prints

MEAL PLANNING WITH ADHD

The problem isn't that you can't cook. It's that deciding WHAT to cook uses up all your executive function before you even start.

This planner removes decisions:

- Pre-made 'go-to meals' list (decide once, use forever)
- 'I Can't Decide' options when your brain is fried
- Grocery list organized by STORE SECTION (not recipe)
- Emergency meals for 'I have no plan' nights
- Zero guilt about ordering takeout sometimes

MY GO-TO MEALS LIST

Fill this in ONCE. These are meals you already know how to make (or assemble).

EMERGENCY MEAL IDEAS

It's 7pm. You have no plan. No energy. These require MINIMAL effort:

5-MINUTE MEALS:

- Cereal (yes, for dinner. No judgment.)
- Toast + peanut butter + banana
- Quesadilla (tortilla + cheese + microwave)
- Yogurt + granola + fruit
- Ramen + frozen veggies + egg

10-MINUTE MEALS:

- Scrambled eggs + toast
- Pasta + jar sauce
- Rice + canned beans + salsa
- Grilled cheese + canned soup
- Frozen pizza (no shame!)

REMEMBER: Fed is best. A 'bad' meal is better than no meal.
